A clean energy future? Now that's a bright idea.

The electric grid has come a long way since Thomas Edison first brought electricity to Newburgh, forming one of the companies that would eventually become Central Hudson. Today, that legacy of innovation continues. As we continue to move toward a sustainable energy future, Central Hudson is making investments to upgrade aging infrastructure and recover more quickly following severe storms while integrating new clean energy sources.

ACCOMMODATIONS

PEACE, LOVE, STAY!

Santana has joined the likes of Jimi, Janis, Levon and other musical icons at the insanely cool Hotel Dylan in Woodstock – at least, in name and spirit. Where else can you book a room named after a legendary artist who performed at the 1969 Woodstock Music Festival?

With the recent addition of “Casita Santana,” (a nod to guitarist-vocalist Carlos Santana), the options for guests keep diversifying at Hotel Dylan. It is the first two-bedroom, two-bathroom home on the property and features an open floor plan with a dining area for six, a full kitchen, living room with a gas fireplace and a washer and dryer.

Darryl Jack, Hotel Dylan’s general manager, says while Casita Santana has been a popular choice for families or larger groups exploring the Catskills, the entire 22-room hotel complex at 320 Maverick Road offers that home-away-from-home feeling of warmth and comfort.

“We facilitate a naturally beautiful destination with historic ties to music, art, history and culture,” he says.

Hotel Dylan, Woodstock

“The Hotel Dylan offers a convenient, exceptionally clean and unique option compared to most hotel properties.”

Another distinguishing element is its interior. Designed by HGTV stars Robert and Cortney Novogratz, Hotel Dylan sports elegant and soulful rooms with hints of bohemian sophistication. Record players with a stash of 1960s vinyl and photographs by Elliott Landy, the official photographer of the Woodstock Festival, add flair to each room.

“The overall atmosphere is relaxed with a focus on providing a fun, comfortable and memorable guest experience through special touches,” Jack notes. “We consistently promote the history and natural beauty of the region.”

The former Maverick Inn underwent a gut renovation in 2012 and opened three years later as the 10-room Hotel Dylan. Over the years, the owners have more than doubled its capacity. Casita Santana debuted in 2021, and Jack says plans are in works for other structures on the property to be transformed into additional guest accommodations.

Hotel Dylan, with the tagline “Peace, Love, Stay,” caters largely to urbanites and travelers seeking a tranquil escape, according to Jack. “The most common feedback that we get from our guests is the kindness shown to them by our staff, how clean the facility is, how much they enjoy all the attention to detail in the rooms and common areas and the overall vibe that we promote.”

While specialized and upscale lodging is abundant in Ulster County, we also have our share of more familiar names like Courtyard by Marriott in Kingston, which doesn’t feel at all like a cookie-cutter chain hotel. That’s due in part to seismic upgrades throughout the facility, including guest rooms, lobby, fitness center, pool, spa and meeting space. Additionally, The Bistro got new carpeting, lighting and a community table with USB ports. In the courtyard, a gas fire pit was added as well as new outdoor furniture.

Adam Pregno, Director of Sales, says while the hotel got a total refresh, it’s more the people behind the business that make it feel special. “We try our best to personalize each guest’s experience and tend not to just make a transaction of checking in and out. We feel that making a genuine connection with guests simply by getting to know them makes a positive impact on their stay.”

That same level of personal service awaits at the stately Mohonk Mountain House in New Paltz, the historic Buttermilk Falls Inn and Spa in Milton and boutique hotels like Diamond Mills in Saugerties and the Hotel Kinsley in Kingston. For ultimate indulgence, book a room at the Emerson Resort and Spa in Mount Tremper, or take the family to the Rocking Horse Ranch Resort in Highland for a rip-roarin’ good time. Want to camp out under the stars? Pitch your tent at Rip Van Winkle Campgrounds or spend the night in a riverside cabin at Hutton Brickyards or an Airstream Suite at AutoCamp Catskills.

Wherever you put down for the night here in Ulster, count on peace and love, and, by all means, soak up the vibe and stay for a while.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY

A BRIGHTER FUTURE AHEAD

Usheco, Inc., may be tucked away off the beaten path, but the county's only custom plastic fabricator is still going strong 26 years after moving to its current location just outside Kingston.

The company, founded in 1961 as a small machine shop by Bernarr C. Schaeffer, is now run by his granddaughter, Alethea Schaeffer. Usheco provides a wide variety of parts to customers in various industries such as medical, lab and handicapped equipment, as well as refrigeration systems and the aeronautics and gaming industries.

"We help our customers solve design problems and provide them with plastic components for their products," she said.

Usheco, as one of Ulster County's prominent manufacturers, is not only a major supporter of the Chamber and the Council of Industry, but Schaeffer has a heart to give back to education. She co-chairs the steering committee for Hudson Valley Pathways Academy and sits on the board for the SUNY New Paltz Engineering Department.

"We like to have the local BOCES students who are interested in manufacturing come in and tour our facility and spark interest in manufacturing," she said.

Schaeffer said she is buoyed by the new space planned for students at the iPark87, the former IBM complex in Kingston.

"I believe it will have a huge impact on local manufacturing," she said.

Last May, Ulster County Executive Jen Metzger announced the creation of the Sustainable Ulster Workforce Innovation Center, a collaboration of the county, SUNY New Paltz, SUNY Ulster, Ulster BOCES and community partners. The center will house several county economic development departments and programming space for the colleges, Ulster YouthBuild and other workforce development partners at iPark87.

The BOCES Career and Technical Center in the same building complex

will serve around 1,200 students.

"Our shared vision is to create a vibrant hub of learning and professional development, and a direct pathway into jobs through partnerships with employers," Metzger said.

When it comes to manufacturing, Ulster County is blessed with a bevy of inventive and high-tech companies doing business around the globe.

One of Usheco's customers is Community Products, run by the local Bruderhof community in Rifton. The company has two divisions—Community Playthings, which has been around since 1954 and manufactures educational play equipment for daycare centers and nursery schools. Rifton Equipment, founded in 1977, is a leading producer of special equipment for children with disabilities.

"Both businesses sell nationally as well as internationally," said John Rhodes, the CEO of Community Products.

Many of the plastic parts required by Community Products are made right here in Ulster County by Usheco. "They have been one of our vendors since the 1950s," Rhodes said.

Community Products, Rifton

Community Products employs about 100 people in Ulster County from the local Bruderhof community. The Bruderhof also owns Community Manufacturing Solutions, which employs about 30 people at the Kingston Business Park. Rhodes said the company produces "high-quality sewn components" for Community Products and third parties.

Howmet Aerospace, which is also located in the Kingston Business Park, manufactures and assembles fastener installation tooling for the industrial, aerospace and automotive industries and boasts several big-name clients.

Our county is also home to several other manufacturers making noise well beyond our border, including Amthor Welding in Gardiner; Bailey Pottery Equipment Corp. and Carole Amper Inc., both in Kingston; Optimum Window in Ellenville; Fair-Rite Products in Wallkill; Wineracks.com in Tillson; and Immune Schein, Simulaids, Markertek and Edwards SemiConductor Solutions, all in Saugerties.

New Paltz-based Viking Industries, a manufacturer of corrugated cardboard and other packaging products, marked its 50th anniversary last year and announced an expansion of its plant.

Highland, in southern Ulster County, is home to not one, but two lighting companies, Zumtobel Lighting and SELUX. Another company shining brightly on the local economy is RBW Factory, a lighting design and manufacturing company on Boices Lane in Kingston.

Schaeffer said she likes what she sees when it comes to local manufacturing moving into the future.

"I do think there's a positive path forward in what we're doing locally," she said.

A COMMUNITY THAT CARES

MEETING THE GREATEST NEEDS

Golden Hill Project, Opening 2026

“You have not lived today until you have done something for someone who can never repay you.”

—John Bunyan

Since its founding in 1971, Family of Woodstock has always been about meeting Ulster County’s greatest needs and these days that is housing, housing and more housing.

Michael Berg, Family’s Executive Director, said his organization is involved in a host of initiatives to help. While the “30 percent rule” recommends spending no more than 30 percent of gross monthly income on housing, that figure can sometimes reach 50 percent in Ulster County.

“There literally is little to no affordable housing in the community. It’s the biggest need we have in the county, and it’s driving food insecurity because people are paying much more than they should to keep a roof over their heads,” said Berg, noting that Family has provided emergency shelter for decades.

To help meet the need, Family is part owner of the Golden Hill project, which should open in early 2026 and provide 164 units of affordable senior and workforce housing at the site of the former Ulster County Jail. The project received a $15 million state grant last year.

“It will be the first housing that really responds to the needs of the people who work here,” Berg said.

Family is also seeking volunteers for an innovative program called HomeShare, which would allow homeowners to link up with potential renters, who would perform tasks in exchange for reduced rent in a tight housing market.

“The owner gets some income and some support, and the other person gets a reduced or affordable rent,” Berg said.

Family is also working to provide 47 studio apartments and support services at a former boarding house in Kingston, and it’s hoped that 15 units could be open in 2025. Berg said Family is also working with the NoVo Foundation for small duplex apartment buildings in Midtown.

Housing is not the only issue facing the county, and an organization known as Hope Rocks Events has emerged to battle addiction, hopelessness and mental instabilities sometimes caused by social isolation.

“Those are the areas where we see a great problem and a critical need to address,” says Joe Defino, the founder and Executive Director of Hope Rocks. “Our role is to be the bridge between those who may be struggling and the support services that are available locally, regionally, nationally and internationally.

“We create events, programs and activities that are designed to break down stigma, create a community response and initiate the recovery process.”

Hope Rocks uses visual artists, filmmakers, performance artists and activities “focused on lighting the darkness of addiction and depression.” The group is funded through grassroots fundraising, and Defino said many Ulster County businesses and organizations lend their support.

“I would absolutely say that Ulster County is a caring and concerned and pro-active area,” Defino said.

Hope Rocks dovetails nicely with groups like People USA, a peer-run behavioral health and wellness organization in Kingston that provides emergency services for those suffering mental health and other issues.

Ulster County's non-profits are always there to step up and help and some, like The Salvation Army and Catholic Charities of Orange, Sullivan and Ulster, do so from a faith-based motive. The Salvation Army's Midtown soup kitchen and food pantry help those folks with food insecurity issues, as does People's Place and its Wellness Empowerment Center.

Those with special needs can find help, love and support at The Arc Mid-Hudson, Resource Center for Accessible Living and Gateway Community Industries.

Some of the other local organizations with overflowing hearts include Ulster County Habitat for Humanity, the United Way of Ulster County, Ulster Literacy Association, Community Foundation of Ulster County, Hudson Valley Hospice, Circle of Friends for the Dying, the Boys and Girls Clubs of Ulster County, Center for Creative Education, YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County and YWCA of Kingston.

The challenges are many, but in Ulster County you'll always find a helping hand and compassionate hearts.

EDUCATION

WE START THEM EARLY

We offer educational opportunities galore in Ulster County, but it all starts with our youngest learners.

Susan Buckler and Jamey Wolff, founders of the Kingston-based Center for Spectrum Services, a school for children with autism founded in 1976, understood that the sooner a child receives special education and therapies, the greater the chance for a positive outcome. This belief drove them to establish community-based programs in 2003 specifically for children between the ages of 2 and 5.

“By providing services directly to children in their homes or preschool settings, they were able to create a lasting impact,” says Charlotte Mennona, the center’s Executive Director.

Today, the Center for Spectrum Services is not only a full day school, with students up to the age of 12, but also runs five preschool classes in Kingston and Ellenville to meet the growing demand of newly diagnosed children in the Hudson Valley. The students come from 35 Hudson Valley school districts.

In the Kingston school, about a quarter—33 of 120—are in the preschool program. In the Ellenville school, two-thirds are considered preschoolers.

“Through our specialized programs and therapies, we see children develop vital communication, social, and behavioral skills that set the foundation for lifelong success,” Mennona said.

“As they engage with tailored learning environments, they gain confidence and independence, making meaningful strides in areas once challenging. Watching these young learners blossom—growing in their abilities to connect, express themselves, and thrive—is a powerful reminder of the importance of early intervention in their development.”

Other local institutions also prioritize our youngest learners. The Kingston City School District sponsors 10 Universal Pre-K programs (UPK), and the YWCA of Ulster County offers an innovative Kindergarten Readiness Program at its facility in Uptown Kingston.

Ulster County also provides a host of private early education locations like the Saugerties Early Childhood Learning Center at the Ten Broeck Center for Rehabilitation and Nursing.

Owner Tammy Reed said 29 students from 18 months to age 5 attend and take part in a STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, the Arts and Math) curriculum. About half of the students are the children of Ten Broeck’s dedicated staffers.

“It’s a lot of hands-on learning,” Reed said, noting that the youngsters also blend in once a week with the senior residents at Ten Broeck.

The county is also home to many other day care centers for youngsters, including Woodland Playhouse in Phoenicia.

Ulster County further boasts a strong public education system, including the Kingston, Ellenville, Wallkill and Ellenville school districts. Ulster County

YWCA Ulster County, Kingston

BOCES (Boards of Cooperative Educational Services) was created by the state in 1948 to assist school districts by offering shared educational programs and services that are difficult for school districts to provide. It serves 1,200 students from eight school districts (including Kingston, Onteora, Ellenville and Walkill).

Additionally, Ulster County is home to two colleges, including four-year SUNY Paltz, often lauded for its quality and affordability by national magazines. SUNY Ulster, a two-year community college in Stone Ridge, was named the No. 1 community college in the state in 2020 based on its academics, affordability and other factors.

Across the Hudson River in Dutchess County, Bard College in Annandale-on-the-Hudson and Marist College in Poughkeepsie, are stellar choices for high school graduates or adults, who plan to continue their education.

And when it comes to specialized learning opportunities, Ulster County is rich with options.

For example, many may not know that Cornell Cooperative Extension is an organization with an educational mission at heart. Cornell links farmers and the community with research from Cornell University's College of Agriculture and Life Science.

Ulster County happens to be one of the more artsy areas of the Hudson Valley, and venues like the heralded Woodstock School of Art fill a great need. If you'd like to learn carpentry skills or gardening techniques, the Coop Concept in Kingston may be for you.

Another organization known as Raising Your Awareness About Narcotics (RYAN) in Saugerties helps educate people about substance abuse and other issues.

No matter who you are or where you are on your educational journey, Ulster County stands ready to help you on the road to knowledge.

HEALTH & WELLNESS

HAPPINESS = HEALTH

If you're happy and you know it, shout hooray! Happier people, according to countless studies, tend to live longer, and that's reason to celebrate. Researchers in Asia recently reinforced that correlation in the Singapore Longitudinal Aging Studies, revealing that "happiness is significantly associated with lower mortality rates."

The folks at Ten Broeck Center for Rehabilitation and Nursing aren't surprised by the findings and have, for more than 30 years, been creating an environment of positivity and joy for their residents. The Lake Katrine senior living community, which was named among the best nursing homes in 2022 by U.S. News and World Report, has abundant resources to help support longevity and overall health and well-being, according to Mackenzie Ferrendino, Ten Broeck's administrator.

"We feature multiple outdoor spaces, a beautiful rehabilitation gym and a robust variety of activities that create a home-like environment for our residents to thrive," she says. "By providing comprehensive rehabilitation and diverse activities, we help our residents achieve greater happiness and overall health."

Ten Broeck Center for Rehabilitation and Nursing, Lake Katrine

Our individualized approach allows us to get to know each resident personally, ensuring they enjoy the highest quality of life in our facility. Additionally, our on-site daycare promotes an intergenerational approach that enhances health and well-being for older adults."

Acquired in 2018 by the Brooklyn-based Infinite Care, Ten Broeck recently upgraded its lobby, cafe, rehabilitation gym and resident rooms. The facility also offers a complementary and alternative medicine program to promote health and prevent illness.

"Ten Broeck believes in offering non-pharmacological interventions to enhance our residents' well-being," Ferrendino says. "We support this approach with a wide range of patient-centered activities. One key service we provide is music therapy, led by our on-site music therapist, who is certified in the Music and Memory program. Residents receive iPods with personalized playlists to enrich their experience. Additionally, we utilize essential oils, which can help improve mood and cognition and are especially beneficial for seniors."

The facility typically cares for 250 residents, and each year, many residents "graduate" from the rehab program. In 2023, 650 patients successfully completed the program.

For those not yet ready for a nursing home, a day at the spa can go a long way in rejuvenating mind and body. Here in Ulster County, there's no shortage of wellness sanctuaries that offer heavy doses of pampering. One of the newest is the Waterside Spa at Diamond Mills in Saugerties, which consists of 9 treatment rooms, three thermal pools, a sauna, fitness center, indoor and outdoor relaxation areas and a gourmet café.

Housed in two 19th-century brick

ice houses that overlook the Esopus Creek, the Waterside Spa provides views unmatched in the Hudson Valley, making every visit to the spa feel like a tranquil retreat.

Spa Director Alissa Rea said, "At Waterside Spa, we believe in creating a sanctuary where every guest can find peace, unwind, and be nurtured from the moment they walk in. With services ranging from massage, body treatments and facials, our team of highly trained providers are dedicated to each guest's well-being, ensuring that our clients feel both rejuvenated and cared for. This spa is more than just a place to receive a service, it's a place to immerse yourself in serenity and the revitalization of your mind, body and soul."

The same holds true at Mohonk Mountain House's award-winning spa, Buttermilk Falls Inn and Spa and the Emerson Resort and Spa in Mount Tremper.

In the case of illness or emergency care, Ulster County has trustworthy options such as HealthAlliance Hospitals, a member of the Westchester Medical Center Health Network, Nuvance Health, and Ellenville Regional Hospital.

From spas to nursing homes (and everything in between), the goal in Ulster is to keep ourselves happy, healthy and loving life. Woot woot!

Kelder's Farm, Kerhonkson

If you Google roadside attractions, chances are the gargantuan garden gnome guarding Kelder's Farm at 5755 Route 209 in Kerhonkson will pop up. The 13½-foot sculpture entices motorists from all over the nation to stop for an Instagram-worthy photo.

Once there, visitors can't resist pulling into one of the all-time favorite fall destinations in Ulster County. Aside from the gnome (once holding the title as the world's tallest), the 235-year-old farm offers a slew of activities from spring through fall. It begins in April with the three-week-long tulip festival and ends with a fall celebration that runs through Oct. 31.

John Kelder says his 12th-generation family farm largely attracts those seeking good, clean, unplugged fun.

"Our typical visitors in the fall are looking to get out and enjoy the fresh air," Kelder says. "It's a tradition for them to escape the city and enjoy that last little bit of fall scenery before the snow flies.

"We offer all types of experiences for everyone to get them outdoors and away from their phones. We've seen many of the same families for 20 years, so it's become a tradition. Now, they bring their children to explore the farm for the whole day. We get a lot of reviews on how their whole family reconnected with each other to enjoy the day."

Kelder's Farm was voted the fifth-best pumpkin patch in the country in a yearly poll by USA Today. Kelder's, which began as a dairy farm, has grown so much that it offers a map of the more than 30 fall activities spread across the 200-acre property ranging from pumpkin-picking and hayrides to amusements like a jumping pillow and tube slides. For that extra blast, Kelder added a pumpkin cannon—powered by pressurized air—as well as an apple cannon and one that shoots out candy.

Kelder's is one of many agritourism destinations across the region that connects people to rural life.

Saunderskill Farm in Accord is another gem known for its pick-your-own fruits and vegetables, including strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, pumpkins and apples.

Ulster County is also home to Headless Horseman Haunted Attraction in Ulster Park. The horror enterprise with Hollywood-style props and hand-built monsters has been consistently named one of the scariest fall attractions in the United States.

While fall is the biggest season

Headless Horseman Haunted Attractions, Ulster Park

for tourism in Ulster County, visitors come year-round to enjoy our 250,000 forever-wild acres encompassing 35 peaks and 350 miles of hiking trails, according to the Ulster County Tourism Department. The warmer months bring hikers, bikers and climbers to Mohonk Preserve in New Paltz or to our more than 80 miles of linked, mixed-use rail trails.

Come wintertime, Belleayre Mountain Ski Center in Highmount glistens with 50 trails, parks and glades. In other seasons, adventurers find their way here to leap out of airplanes at Skydive The Ranch in Gardiner or ride the rails on pedal-powered cars at Rail Explorers in Phoenicia.

Students of history plan their vacation to the Senate House State Historic Site in Kingston, where the first New York State Senate met in the fall of 1777 to adopt a constitution, or the Hudson River Maritime Museum, which reveals a unique glimpse into Kingston's boating and shipping past. The Delaware and Hudson Canal Museum, located in the High Falls 1797 DePuy Tavern, preserves the canal's history and artifacts.

As a known haven for artists, writers and musicians, Ulster County also has its share of cultural events throughout the year, most notably the Woodstock Film Festival, and exceptional venues for live music such as the Bearsville Center. Lovers of top-notch theater will be drawn to the Woodstock Playhouse, Shadowland Stages in Ellenville, the Ulster Performing Arts Center in Kingston and Denizen Theatre in New Paltz.

With so many assets, it's no wonder Ulster County has long been topping bucket lists for travel junkies seeking a destination that bridges history, culture and pure, unplugged pleasure.
